

Assignment 02

We will begin with some relatively easy and straightforward tasks. Provide complete, concise, and correct (the three C's) written answers to the following tasks (a paragraph or two or three of text, relevant images, etc.). Only .pdf files are acceptable. The assignment is due before the start of the next lab section. For this assignment, each of the first five tasks is worth 18 points.

- 1) Find out something about your beloved professor. Search using your preferred internet search engine (google, bing, etc.) for:

dennis slice (no quotes)

“dennis slice” (with quotes)

“dennis e. slice” (with quotes)

Summarize and discuss your findings.

- 2) Search for images and videos of your beloved professor. Include in your report one or two interesting or unusual images or links to videos. Discuss your findings and explain your choices.
- 3) Search the primary literature for the papers of your favorite psychology professor (not your beloved professor). Describe what you had to do, if anything, to limit the results to just your professor. Which of their papers is most interesting to you (provide the citation). Why?
- 4) Search the primary literature for papers on a psychology topic of interest to you. Describe your search and the ways, if any, you limited it to relevant articles. Provide the citation and abstract and explain your choice.
- 5) Search the internet for FSU Football statistics for 2015. Where did you find the information? Include in your report a table indicating Opponent, location (Home or Away), FSU score, Opponent score, fan attendance.
- 6) LIFE LESSON – ten points, but useful. Search for your own name in various forms, with and without quotes, etc. Imagine you are a graduate program director, employer, agency grant director, researcher looking for a collaborator, etc. What do you think about what you find?
